
Codes for General and Country Notes

GENERAL

Code letters in the Notes column of the country pages refer to the following general footnotes:

- A* GNP per capita in US$ is calculated using an alternative conversion factor.
- B* GDP by industrial origin data for at least some years are in purchaser values and not at factor cost.
- C* Data are for fiscal years; see Country Notes.
- D* Money supply reflects total liquid liabilities.
- E* State and local government accounts are thought to contribute at least 20 percent of central government tax revenue.
- F* Break in comparability of data, see the IMF's Government Financial Statistics Yearbook.
- G* Data are for persons engaged, not employees.
- H* Partial rebasing into 1987 prices would yield a large rescaling deviation; therefore GDP has been rescaled directly from the original base year to 1987 prices.
- I* Partial rebasing into 1987 prices has resulted in a rescaling deviation of more than 5 percent of private consumption.
- J* Break in comparability of data; see UN Yearbook of Industrial Statistics.

COUNTRY

- f* Indicates country-specific notes. These are listed in the pages following, under main topic headings, and in alphabetical order, by country.

Data on Diskette and Magnetic Tape

Data in this edition of World Tables and in all of the data series described below (except Trends in Developing Economies) are available on 5.25- and 3.5-inch diskettes in the World Bank's STARS retrieval system. Users of DOS 2.0 or higher can view the data in their personal computers and export their own data extracts in a variety of electronic formats. Data from World Debt Tables and World Tables are also available on magnetic tape. Published by the World Bank.

Other annual statistical publications of related interest

Social Indicators of Development

Covering more than 170 countries, this series contains the latest estimates of population and GNP per capita, as well as three time periods of data on human resources, natural resources, income and poverty, expenditure, and investment in human capital. Summary tables combine social and economic indicators to aid comparison of countries and country groups. The data are gathered from governments, from specialized international agencies, and from the files of the World Bank. Published by the Johns Hopkins University Press.

World Debt Tables

This series provides an overview of the external debt of 107 developing countries. Compiled from the World Bank's exclusive Debtor Reporting System, it gives statistics by country on public and publicly guaranteed long-term debt, private nonguaranteed long-term debt, short-term debt, and International Monetary Fund credits. Charts on debt service and debt stocks also describe the debt situation in each country. Aggregate data are presented for all countries and for selected groups, including principal borrowers and highly indebted countries. Supplements update the statistics several times each year. Published by the World Bank.

World Development Report

Published since 1978, this series of reports has been described by The Guardian as "the nearest thing to having an annual report on the present state of the planet and the people who live on it." Each edition presents an economic overview and then concentrates on a specific topic of concern in world development. The 1990 edition focuses on the topic of poverty. The World Development Indicators—a section of 33 statistical tables, with technical notes and maps—provide comprehensive, up-to-date data on social and economic development in more than 120 countries and territories. Published by Oxford University Press.

Trends in Developing Economies

This annual statistical series describes recent economic performance and trends in almost 100 developing countries. Each country has its own profile, including a comprehensive table of economic and social indicators and a brief analysis of current economic conditions. The profiles, arranged alphabetically for ready reference, are drawn from the World Bank's internal data base and economic analyses of its member countries. Published by the World Bank.

A supplement to World Tables 1991 will be published in Fall 1991.
